Lamborghini introduced a lighter, faster and greener version of its successful Gallardo at the Geneva International Motor Show yesterday. The introduction comes as demand for cars with a smaller carbon imprint seeps even into the supersports class.

The sleek Gallardo LP560-4 weighs 19 kilograms less than the previous model, and the revamped engine gives up only three-tenths of a second from 0 to 100 km/h, now 3.7 seconds.

Its carbon emissions have been cut 18 per cent.

Lamborghini's target is to cut carbon emissions by 40 per cent.
